RULING PUTS STOP TO ALIENATION SUIT

JUDGE FARRAND RULED THAT CASE OF STEPHAN VS. GROSS BE DISMISSED.

DEFENDANTS DEATH IS CAUSE

Jurist Decided That in Case of This Nature the Defendant's Estate is Not Liable for Damages.

A suit for alienation of affections cannot stand against the estate of the defendant, if the defendant dies before the trial of the case. Such was the ruling of Judge R. S. Farrand in the case of Mrs. Ernestine Stephan vs. Mrs. Martha Gross, which was to have been heard this forenoon, and which was dismissed by the judge following his ruling.

The case is an interesting one in many particulars. Mrs. Ernestine Stephan, the plaintiff, alleged that Mrs. Martha Gross, deceased, in the year 1911, estranged her husband's affections, and that as a result of the alienation Mrs. Gross and her husband went to Omaha, where they lived together for some time.

Started Suit in 1911.

On Dec. 19, 1911, she started suit through her attorneys, Brooks & Brooks, asking damages in the sum of $10,000. By the time the case was called to trial Mrs. Gross was taken seriously ill, and she died last summer. N. A. Petrie of Ashton was made executor of the estate and the plaintiff asked that he be made defendant in the suit instead of Mrs. Gross. Judge O. E. Heard allowed the substitution but Saturday the attorneys argued the matter before Judge Farrand, with the result that he held that in a case of this kind the cause dies with the defendant, and that the case be stricken from the docket. The plaintiff is contemplating an appeal.

ASK PEN SENTENCE FOR GUN "TOTERS"

A STATE-WIDE MOVEMENT TO MAKE CARRYING CONCEALED WEAPONS A FELONY.

The local police have been asked to assist in a state-wide movement which it is hoped will result in the passage of a law making it a felony to carry concealed weapons, instead of simply a misdemeanor punishable with a fine.

The police of all the cities in the state are backing the agitation.

GEORGE SAUMBY TELLS STORY OF ACCIDENT

COPIES OF TELEGRAPH IN GRIP FURNISHED ADDRESS—WAS RENDERED UNCONSCIOUS.

George Saumby, who was injured two weeks ago on Tuesday at St. Louis, returned from that city yesterday. He is still in a somewhat crippled condition as the result of an encounter with a railroad train. Two ribs are broken and he is slightly injured internally, but is now on the mend. Mr. Saumby was struck by a train near the depot at St. Louis as he stepped out of the way of another oncoming engine. He was rendered unconscious and was insensible for two hours in the City hospital and it was while he was in this state that his friend, Frank Wilson, who was with him at the time of the accident which so nearly resulted fatally, sent the postal card to the Telegraph telling of the young man's misfortune, and asking this paper to notify the boy's parents. Mr. Saumby had two Evening Telegraphs in his grip and this was the only clew to his address.

1 SLAIN; 12 HURT IN BLOODY RIOT

Deputy Sheriffs and Strikers Engage in Sanguinary Battle at Rankin, Pa.

LUMP OF COAL STARTS FIGHT

Workmen Force Officers to Retire—Six-Months-Old Child and Several Women Are Among the Injured—Men Not Hurt.

Rankin, Pa., Jan. 29.—In two bloody fights between deputy sheriffs, armed with revolvers and rifles, and strikers, armed with stones, from the Rankin plant of the American Steel and Wire company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation, one man was killed, two fatally wounded and ten seriously injured. All the wounded, with the exception of two deputy sheriffs, were spectators. Not a striker was injured so far as known. A six-months-old child and several women are among the injured. Hawkins square, where the trouble occurred, was a bloody battleground for over an hour and the fight ended only when the deputy sheriffs, led by Sheriff Bruff, retreated within the fence of the big wire mills. According to witnesses of the trouble, the deputy sheriffs were to blame, as there was little provocation for the firing on the crowd.

List of Dead and Injured.

The dead: George Cozley, aged twenty-nine. The injured: Fritz Beck, aged thirty-two, dying; Annie Leeba, aged eighteen, believed fatal. Seriously injured: Richard Paris, aged thirty-one, negro; Mike Miklos, aged six months; Charles Benston, aged forty-nine; Mrs. John Seblanovitz, twenty-six; Anton Andisk, twenty-eight; Chief of Police Walter Barnett, head cut by flying missiles; two deputy sheriffs and two negroes whose names are unknown.

Shortly before five o'clock in the evening 300 strikers emerged from a public hall in Fourth street after having held a big mass meeting and gathered in front of the hall to pose for a newspaper picture.

At about the same time eighty deputy sheriffs, led by Sheriff Bruff, Burgess, Milligan and Chief of Police Barnett, left the wire mill and marched up the hill towards Hawkins avenue.

Lump of Coal Starts Trouble.

The picture finished, the strikers dispersed and were starting for their homes when they were met by the big file of deputy sheriffs marching in military order. A dead silence followed. Suddenly some one picked a lump of coal off a loaded coal wagon and threw it into the ranks of the strikers. In a trice the battle was on. Coal, bricks and miscellaneous missiles flew through the air, mingled with the whistle of bullets and the rattling discharge of magazine guns and automatic revolvers. Screams and yells of rage filled the air while men and women fell to the ground. In some places the pavements were torn up by the strikers in their frantic efforts to secure bricks with which to protect themselves. Apparently beaten, the deputies retreated down the hill to the mill.

Battle is Renewed.

Fifteen minutes later the deputies appeared again. This time it is said they were supplied with shells loaded with buckshot.

Soon the battle was on again. Nearly every window in Hawkins square was broken and several persons in nearby houses were injured. The crash of musketry, the rattle of heavy buckshot against the buildings and the cries of men and women continued for a quarter of an hour. Having exhausted their ammunition the deputies again retired to safety behind the high walls of the mills.

THOS. WADE, VETERAN RELIEVED FROM DUTY

AGED SOLDIER RESPONDS TO TAPS AT QUINCY HOME—WAS PATIENT SOUL WITH HOSTS OF FRIENDS.

Thomas Wade, an old soldier and a well known resident of Dixon, died Tuesday night at the Soldiers' home in Quincy, Ill. His daughter, Mrs. Napoleon Berard, 116 Artesian Place of Dixon, was notified of the demise of the aged veteran by telegraph today and she and her husband took the first train south to claim the remains and bring them here for burial.

Thomas Wade, who at the time of his death was 85 years of age, was born in County Cork, Ireland, and came to this country 50 years ago. He was married and settled in Dixon. When the civil war was declared he was among the first to enlist in the company that went from Dixon, and he served through the war. His wife preceded him in death on May 4th, 1873, when she was drowned in the most dreadful catastrophe in the history of Dixon, the falling of the Galena avenue bridge.

Three children survive: Mrs. Napoleon Berard of this city, and Daniel and Thomas Wade of Chicago. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

NO CELEBRATION OF ST. PATRICK'S DAY

BECAUSE THE FEAST THIS YEAR WILL COME IN HOLY WEEK.

There will be no celebration on St. Patrick's day this year for the fourth time since 1880 and the last time in the 20th century.

Hibernians will be unable to celebrate the annual feast day of their native country but they may console themselves with the thought that this will be the last time they or their descendants will have to forego the joy which should be theirs on March 17th.

It is all because the annual feast day comes on the second day of Holy Week, and the Catholic church rules that all feasts shall be either postponed or canceled if they fall in the week before Easter.

There have been only three times in the past that the celebration on St. Patrick's day was suspended on account of Holy Week. They were in 1818, when Easter fell on March 22, the earliest date on which it can occur; in 1845 and 1856, when it came on March 23, the same date as this year.

Calculators have figured Easter dates until the year 2000, but they found no other year in which Easter will come so early as to keep the Irishman from singing the praise of St. Patrick.

But the church does not forbid the wearing of green ribbon Holy Week, and it is expected yards of the national color will be worn.

NEXT SUNDAY IS GROUND HOG DAY

MR. WOODCHUCK WILL THEN VENTURE FROM HIS WINTER QUARTERS.

Next Sunday will be Groundhog day, and an anxious public will be on the lookout for the appearance of the animal which, it is said, will foretell the winter weather. If the sun is out and Mr. Groundhog sees his shadow he immediately 'beats it' back into his hole and six weeks more of winter are due; but if the day is cloudy and the animal is not frightened, he stays out and spring follows quickly.

DEMENTTOWN ... DOINGS

Ye scribe wants to thank Commissioner Gannon for his determination that Dixon shall not be made a Zion City. They can't even smoke in Voliva's town.

There are some people, according to the Avenue Observer, who are always opposed to anything new and are satisfied with everything as it stands.

Imagine our condition if everyone from the beginning of time had been the same way. There wouldn't be fig leaves enough to go 'round.

A dispatch from New York says that a foreign nobleman kissed his wife on the dock. If he didn't want to kiss her on the mouth he might at least have tried the cheek.

It is reported to be a lot safer trying to imitate the birds by singing than by flying.

According to Mayor Vaile the difference between a cold house and a warm house is measured by the coal you are willing to burn.

There are lots of people who are dead willing to see a fellow get along if he is going in the right direction—down hill.

Many a girl before marriage can get along on a $2 hat and trim it herself but gets a lot of different ideas after she has acquired a permanent meal ticket.

It takes a lot of courage to admit that you are passionately fond of limburger cheese.

Goose Hollow Letter.

Mrs. Hank Tumms made some doughnuts for the church social and the fellers all bought to shoot quots with next summer. (Meaning of course that they were quite hard and the hole in them was quite some).

Dr. Striggins says that the length of a man's life depends entirely on the interval between his birth and death.

Miss Amy Pringle confessed that mistletoe doesn't work as well as it did about ten years ago.

According to our physicians folks are so healthy that they feel well when they are sick.

Sidney Hofferder, tax collector of Hamilton township, called on Dixon friends today.

Wm. Smith, tax collector of Harmon, was here today.

HANDS CRACKING AND BLEEDING

With Eczema, Watery Blisters, Disfigured and Sore. Could Not Put Them in Water. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

St. Clair, Mo.—"My trouble began about fifteen years ago. It was what some claimed eczema. The form the disease worked under was a breaking out on my hands which would then dry and scale, and then would follow the trouble of cracking and bleeding, also itching and burning. My hands were disfigured at the time, and sore. The trouble was very annoying, and disturbed my sleep. This last February it was ever so much worse than before. I did not do all my work on account of the condition of my hands. I could not put them in water without making them worse. I tried a lot of home remedies, also salves and liniments that claimed to be a cure for the trouble, but I did not obtain a cure.

"At last I saw the advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I sent for a sample. I thought they would cure, so I sent for a fifty-cent box of Cuticura Ointment and some Cuticura Soap. A doctor advised me to keep ahead with the Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they cured me completely. No trace of the trouble remains." (Signed) Mrs. Mary Taylor, Mar. 29, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold throughout the world. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Be Tender-faced men should use Cuticura Soap & Ointment. 25c. Sample free.

SUNLIGHT IN THE TROPICS.

Tropical sunlight has been charged with being especially harmful, as it is different from sunlight in other parts of the world. The light which reaches the surface of the earth is composed of ultraviolet rays, rays of the visible spectrum, and the infrared rays associated with heat phenomena. To the short rays of the ultraviolet portions harmful effects have been charged. Ultraviolet rays, however, are easily guarded against by the use of white clothing; heat rays are not. When monkeys, which are naturally at home in the tropics, and might be able to withstand the effects of sunlight, are exposed to the full sun without protection or artificial means of lowering the temperature, the speedily die. If, however, care is taken to conduct away the excessive heat by means of a brisk current of air from a fan, the body temperature remains approximately normal and the animals remain healthy, showing that the danger is in the heat and not in the ultraviolet rays.

In man heat regulation is much more complete than in animals, and this enables human beings to protect themselves from such fatal effects as are observed in monkeys. The relative advantages of dark skinned races over those with lighter colored skins has been variously debated. The dark skin of the negro will absorb heat more readily than the lighter one of the white, but the darker colors also have a greater radiating power. Accordingly the heat rapidly taken up will also be lost rapidly. The darker skins also appear to contain a larger percentage of sweat glands. A further advantage consists in the lessened susceptibility to injury from sunburn. If the darker-skinned races are better prepared to withstand the sun, the white man can obtain protection by shade. There is always a danger in generalization from a few facts says the Journal of the American Medical Association. It is an advantage to be equipped by Nature to withstand a tropical sun; but this is not necessarily equivalent to a capacity to endure a tropical climate into which many other aspects besides the effect of sunlight enter, which deserve consideration quite apart from the contentions just advanced. The various factors contributing to comfort and health in the tropics should never be confused.

When done, take out the meat, thicken the liquor, adding a little butter. Pour over the meat, and serve.

EGGLESS, BUTTERLESS, MILK-LESS CAKE

Mix together two cupfuls of white sugar, two cupfuls of water (cold), two tablespoonfuls of shortening and one package of seeded raisins, and boil for five minutes. When the mixture is cold, add three cupfuls of flour with one teaspoonful of soda and one teaspoonful each each of different spices. Bake one hour in a fairly hot oven. This makes two good loaves of cakes; they are improved by keeping. For shortening use chicken fat or beef drippings.

Baked Bananas.

The banana may be baked whole, one side of the skin being stripped back in this case, or it may be peeled and cut in halves or quarters. The fruit should be placed in a baking pan sprinkled with cinnamon, a half cupful of sugar, a pinch of salt and tiny bits of butter. Pour into the pan a half cupful of water and bake frequently while baking in a quick oven. Lemon juice may be substituted for cinnamon, making it into a sirup before baking, then pouring over the fruit when placed in the oven. Apples may be baked with the peeled bananas with delicious results, adding a dash of lemon juice.

Chocolate Pudding.

BIG FIGHT OVER TAFT NOMINEES

Republicans Seek to Force Senate to Confirm President's Selections.

DEMOCRATS DEFY FILIBUSTER

G. O. P. Senators Declare They Will Fight Mr. Wilson's Appointments of March 4 if the Other Side Continues Opposition.

Washington, Jan. 29.—After a caucus of Republican senators, in which a plan to fight for confirmation of President Taft's held-up nominations was agreed upon, Senator Smoot moved an executive session of the senate, with the idea of holding the session as long as a quorum could be kept.

The Republicans had promised to remain in their seats to keep the quorum and to repeat the motion every day, in the hope of forcing confirmations. The Democrats were equally determined to permit no confirmations other than army, navy and diplomatic, and prospect of a lively struggle was presented.

The Republicans declined to consider the proposal made by the Democratic caucus for a joint committee of ten to go over the nominations and select some for confirmation. The proposal found no support in the Republican ranks.

Democrats Defy Filibuster. When the senate went into executive session, Senator Martin, the Democratic floor leader, stated that the Democrats would adhere to their course of opposing action on the majority of the Taft appointments.

He declared that the Democrats did not fear the effect that a filibuster might have on legislation, adding that if any of the appropriation bills failed of passage before March 4 they could be passed as soon as the extra session convened.

Some Republican senators have declared themselves determined to fight Mr. Wilson's nominations after March 4 if the Democrats persist in the present opposition to the Taft appointments.

Caucus Presents Solid Front. Contrary to the expectation of some Republican leaders, the caucus presented a solid front to reject the proposal of the Democrats and insist upon confirmations. Senators Dixon and Poindexter, who have made definite announcement of their alignment with the Progressive party, were not there, but other Republican senators, classed as Progressives, were present and apparently in accord with the plan of the caucus, which held that each case must stand on its merits.

Farmers Oppose Aldrich Plan. Opposition by farmers to the national commission's plan was voiced by W. T. Creasy, master of the Pennsylvania state grange, before the house currency reform committee.

Mr. Creasy told the committee that Pennsylvania farmers and, he believed, farmers generally, were "bitterly opposed to the Aldrich scheme."

"We believe," he said, "that the big financiers are more interested in gaining control of the currency for themselves than they are in any effort to secure its elasticity."

MOROS ATTACK TROOPS

Men of Co.'s E and G of 8th Cavalry Wounded.

Many in Attacking Party Killed—Mexican Rebels Preparing an Advance on Juarez.

Manila, Jan. 29.—News of sharp fighting between United States troops, aided by native constabulary, and savage Moros on the island of Jolo was received here by Brig. Gen. John I. Pershing, commander of the department of Mindanao, from Colonel Swift, Eighth cavalry, U. S. A., commanding the forces on the island of Jolo.

The Moros attacked troops E and G of the Eighth cavalry, wounding Privates Underwood, Tracey, Young and Keller in the opening assault. Several Moros were killed in the fighting that followed. On the 23d the American forces attacked a blockhouse from which the Moros were firing through loopholes. After failing to take the blockhouse by storm the Americans fell back and drove the Moros out with a field gun.

Washington, Jan. 29.—According to war department dispatches from Brigadier General Steever, commanding the American forces at El Paso, Tex., the Mexican rebels are preparing to advance on Juarez, and General Salazar has massed his forces thirty miles south of that city.

PEACE OUTLOOK BLACK

Turks Will Refuse to Make Further Concessions.

Delegates Are Leaving London—Serious Clashes Between Ottoman Troops at Tchatalja Reported.

London, Jan. 29.—The outlook for peace appears as black as ever. Turkey's reply to the powers' note, which is expected to be delivered today is almost certain to be a polite refusal to make further concessions.

The peace delegates, who are already leaving London, have washed their hands of the negotiations, leaving the matter to the powers for solution. In the meanwhile Roumania, taking advantage of the situation created by the Turkish coup d'etat, has increased her demands upon Bulgaria and now coolly requests a whole province. The general opinion is that if she gets it she will do so by force.

A dispatch to the Times from Vienna says the following telegram was issued by the Austrian official news agency, under date of Constantinople, January 27:

"Persistent rumors affirm that grave disturbances have arisen in the army at Tchatalja between the partisans of the Young Turks and those of Nazim Pasha. A sanguinary conflict between the troops is even said to have occurred. Authentic confirmation of this rumor is lacking. Talaat Bey has gone to Tchatalja."

ATTACK HOUSE OF PARLIAMENT

London Suffragettes Charge Police in Attempt to "Rush" Lloyd-George.

BREAK HOME OFFICE WINDOWS

Arrest Made in British Metropolis Following Demonstration in Trafalgar Square—Women Are Sentenced to Prison.

London, Jan. 29.—Much broken glass and 22 suffragettes in jail, sums up the casualties of the first day's guerrilla war declared by the women as a result of the death of the franchise bill.

London, Jan. 29.—Throwing themselves against a cordon of police, a band of more than a hundred of the most militant suffragettes attacked the parliament house in an attempt to "rush" Lloyd-George. The police had literally to overpower the women before they would submit. Sylvia Pankhurst and Mrs. Drummond and a dozen other leaders were arrested. They fought viciously all the way to the station house.

Attack Home Office. Earlier in the evening another band attacked the home office, pelting the windows with stones. Three of the leaders were arrested. They refused to give their names. Home Secretary Mowlem was in his office at the time of the attack, but was not within the "danger zone."

The threatened campaign of the suffragettes to renew their efforts for the cause with increased violence, was formally opened at noon with an assault on Dublin castle. They smashed fifteen windows with stones before the Irish police could get control of the situation. Three of the women—Mrs. Cousins, Mrs. Conery and Mrs. Hopkins—were arrested and each sentenced to a month's hard labor in prison.

Sentence Women to Jail. Three suffragettes, who resisted the efforts of the police to restore quiet during the demonstration in Trafalgar square, were sentenced to fourteen days' imprisonment. One of them, Mrs. Despard, who is a sister of the famous cavalry general, Sir John French, was offered the option of paying a fine of ten dollars, but she defiantly declared she would go to jail.

A fourth suffragette was sentenced to prison for seven days.

Minnesota Vote Bill Lost. St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 29.—By a vote of 33 to 30 the senate rejected a bill proposing a constitutional amendment giving women the right to vote.

Arrest Prominent New York Women. New York, Jan. 29.—Four women of wealth, and ardent advocates of the right of their sex to the ballot, who have taken an active interest in the strike of the girls in the needle industries, were gathered with 17 strikers, in the net strung by the police of the West Seventeenth street station through the loft district in the lower West Twenties here. The four women are: Miss Maud Younger, Mrs. Marguerite Remington Charter, the writer; Mrs. Sarah Parks, editor of the Woman Voter, and Miss Margaret Hiney. They were all charged with disorderly conduct. Another woman of prominence, who entered the station house during the evening, was Miss Fola La Follette, daughter of the Wisconsin senator, who accompanied Miss Guskie Birnbaum, a picket who had been arrested during a disturbance in West Twenty-first street. These were all discharged.

HOW TO STACK OATS.

Stacks Should Be Built so they Will Shed Water—Stacks Should Be Set Up From the Ground.

Where grain is stacked it is important that the stacks be well built. If the stacks are so carelessly put up that they will not shed water the grain might much better be allowed to stand in the shock. The bottom of the stack should be set up from the ground slightly by laying down old rails or other material to keep the grain from coming in contact with the earth. This will prevent the absorption of moisture from below. The shape of the stack is less important than the manner in which the bundles are laid. They should be so placed that only the butts are exposed, and so that water will readily run off the sides of the stack and not penetrate enough to wet the grain. The round form of stack probably sheds water better than the long rick sometimes constructed. If the rick is built the top should be covered with straw or wild hay to keep out water.

VARIETIES OF OATS.

Some Hardy Types Recommended by the Department of Agriculture.

(C. W. Warburton, Agronomist in Charge of Oat Investigations for the Department of Agriculture.)

[National Crop Improvement Service.] A brief list of the varieties which are most likely to lend themselves to efforts toward their improvement follows. Many others might be mentioned.

For fall sowing in the south: Virginia Gray and hardy strains of Rust proof.

For spring sowing in the south: Burt, Rust proof.

For the central states (from Pennsylvania westward to Colorado): Sixty-Day, Kherson, Silvermine, Joannette, Early Champion, Siberian.

For northern states (including the intermountain area and Pacific northwest): Swedish Select, Early Gothland, American Banner, Lincoln, Progress, Sixty-Day, White Russian, Igowo, Big Four.

ESTABLISHING BEST VARIETIES.

The crop improvement committee is advocating the establishment of seed centers in various localities in each county in order that the grain growers may be induced to grow one type of corn, wheat, oats or other grain best adapted to soil and climate, so that a single variety free from mixtures may be obtained in carload lots.

Efforts are being made by the committee to arrange for meetings to which shall be invited the farmers and business men of each locality. At this meeting the best types of seed will be introduced upon recommendation of the college of agriculture and each farmer will be asked to try the new variety on a small acreage, so that comparisons may be made with his home varieties, as to yield, adaptability, etc.

PRINTERS FAVOR

THE OWEN BILL

In the January issue of the Typographical Journal under the heading 'A Measure Printers Should Favor,' appears an editorial endorsement of the Owen bill. After outlining the purpose of the bill, the editor says: 'As usual the measure has encountered the opposition of certain interests. To overcome this opposition and to effect the passage of the bill will require educational work and the cooperation of friends of the measure.' The Typographical Journal recognizes the importance of this measure to the working man. Probably no other class would be so greatly benefited by any improvement in health conditions as would the competent, industrious members of the trade-unions. The man who makes his living by his own hands must have good health. It is his principal asset. Any measure which improves health conditions is of direct personal interest to the working man, says the Journal of the American Medical Association. If all other influences for health legislation were silenced, the labor unions of the country alone, if they fully understood its importance, would still demand that congress pay at least as much attention to health, which is the capital of the laboring man, as it does to currency, banking, the tariff and the interstate commerce.

IMPROVED METHODS OF EXAMINING IMMIGRANTS

A conference of distinguished alienists and social workers met in New York in November, 1912, and addressed to the inspection chairman of the committees on immigration of the two houses of congress a series of resolutions which set forth the needed amendments to the immigration laws, as understood by them. It is recommended among other things that a commissioned medical officer of the public health service be detailed to each vessel bringing immigrants to the United States, so that immigrants might be examined during the voyage with special reference to their mental condition; that a sufficient number of medical officers with special training and experience in the detection of insanity and mental defectiveness be detailed for duty at Ellis Island at all times and at least one medical officer to every large port of entry, and that they be given the facilities, interpreters, etc. necessary to make sufficient examinations; that the period during which mentally defective aliens or those becoming insane after entry may be deported be extended to five years instead of three as at present. The conference also favored the medical examination of immigrants at the point of embarkation. The need for specially trained examiners for the detection of insanity and mental defectiveness is emphasized in an editorial in a recent issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

THE FEEBLE MINDED IMMIGRANT

In spite of the best available inspection, a number of insane among immigrants to this country succeed in gaining entrance, or else become insane within a comparatively short period after their arrival. The detection of feeble minded immigrants tection of feeble minded immigrants who may fail to become entirely self-supporting later, perhaps, becoming public charges, is an allied but distinct problem and requires of inspectors a special training. Some experts a special training. Some experts indicate the manner in which the immigrant inspection service might be greatly improved have been carried on by Goddard, director of the research Laboratory of the Training School at Vineland, N. J. These experiments showed that by the present methods the physicians of the department recognized only approximately 10 per cent of feeble minded immigrants that shows by contrast the value of expert training in the recognition of the feeble minded among immigrants.

Another highly interesting feature of this test was the percentage distribution of these immigrants in relation to the country of their origin. Of the entire number examined, six hundred were from Southern Europe.

In comparison with the estimated three or four defectives per thousand of the population in the United States it shows an enormous proportion of defectives among the immigrants. Incidentally, this observation seems to furnish a strong argument against Dr. Goddard's views on the relative proportions of native born and foreign defectives, commented on last week.

In view of the steady and enormous stream of immigration to this country from foreign lands the conclusions to be drawn from this showing are so obvious that no extended statement of them need be made. The Journal of the American Medical Association says however, that without desiring to criticize the present over worked inspection service, training in some institution for the feeble minded for a year or two, and the addition of half a dozen inspectors, would vastly improve the inspection service. This together with some amendment of the immigration laws, or a stricter enforcement of the present law in regard to deportation of defectives, would certainly relieve the country of an enormous and continuing burden of expense and responsibility, to say nothing of the deleterious effect of this defective stock on the entire social fabric.

OLD AND NEW RECIPES THAT ARE ALWAYS IN SEASON.

Substantial Dish Composed of Lean Meat and Kidneys—Steamed Fruit a Dessert Delicacy—Orange Cream Also Favored.

Meat and Kidney Pudding.—Sift a quarter of a pound of flour into a basin, add a pinch of salt and one level teaspoonful of baking powder; then put through the meat chopper a quarter of a pound of suet and mix it in, rubbing it into the flour with the fingers. Add as much cold water as will wet it, and make it up into a stiff paste, then flour the baking board and roll it out into a round piece scarcely half an inch thick. Then line a buttered basin with the paste, then cut even round the edges. Mix together on a plate one tablespoonful of flour, one teaspoonful of salt and half a teaspoonful of pepper for seasoning. Cut one pound of lean meat in thin slices, dip them in the seasoned flour and place them lightly in the basin; split one sheep's kidney, skin and cut it in thin slices; dip them also in the flour and put them in the bowl and pour in one cupful of water for gravy. Wet the edges of the paste on the bowl; roll out the scraps of paste large enough to cover the dish; place it on, press down at the edges, and sprinkle a little flour over the top. Now dip a pudding cloth in boiling water, tie it tightly over the top and plunge the pudding in plenty of boiling water; then boil for three hours. Remove the cloth and turn the pudding onto a dish. Serve hot.

Steamed Fruit Pudding.—Three cupfuls of flour, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one cupful of suet, chopped finely, one cupful of milk, one cupful of molasses, one teaspoonful of soda, one-half cupful of currants, one-half cupful of raisins and one teaspoonful of mixed spices. Mix the dry ingredients together and add suet, mixing thoroughly. Lastly add the liquid. Put in mold and steam for three hours. Serve with vanilla sauce.

Orange Cream Pudding.—Two heaping tablespoonfuls of powdered gelatin, one cupful of boiling water, two cupfuls of orange juice, two cupfuls of whipped cream, two cupfuls of sugar and the yolks of three eggs. Dissolve the gelatin in the boiling water, then add the sugar, orange juice and yolks of eggs, beat all well together, then add the whipped cream. Pour into a wet mold and turn out when firm.

Best Way to Wash Windows.
There is a right and a wrong way to wash windows. The work should be done on a dull day, for when the sun shines on windows it causes them to dry streaky, no matter how much they may be rubbed. Before washing the windows, dust them off well, both inside and out; then wash all the inside woodwork. The windows should be washed carefully with warm water to which a little ammonia has been added. Soap should never be used. A small cloth on the end of a pointed stick is a very valuable instrument to get the dust out of the corners. When the windows have been washed thoroughly, wipe them dry with a piece of cotton cloth. It is never good to use a linen cloth, as linen will leave a great amount of lint on the glass. When the windows are thoroughly dry, polish them with tissue paper or old newspaper.

Here and There.
A good, sweet sandwich filling is made of dates and powdered sugar. To make baked potatoes dry and mealy, just when potatoes are tender, put a fork at least twice into each potato to let the steam escape. Try mixing pancakes in a pitcher of the bellboy shape, one that an egg-beater fits in nicely. It is much easier to pour directly from the pitcher on to the griddle instead of ladling the batter out of a bowl.

Celery and lettuce may be kept fresh by sanding the roots in cold water and throwing over them a damp cloth or dry manila paper. They should, before using, be washed thoroughly, soaked in ice water and dried on a towel.

To prevent the gas oven from getting on fire when broiling put some water in the drip pan.

Greeting Cards.
Cream together a half cup butter, and one cup sugar, add three beaten eggs, one cup of milk, one cup wheat and seeded raisins, dusted with flour, three and a half even cups sifted flour, two teaspoonfuls baking powder. Mix all together gently. Bake in small pans in quick oven. When cool, frost in white, and when the frosting is firm, decorate each with a loop outline framing the greeting, 'Merry Christmas.' Sprinkle the greeting and edging with sugar, which will readily cling to the wet frosting and shake off from the dry frosting. It gives an attractive 'frosty' effect.—Harpers' Bazar.

Home Hints.
The finger marks on a door can be removed by a clean flannel cloth dipped in kerosene oil; afterward wipe with a cloth wrung out of hot water in order to take the smell away. Dingy towels may frequently be restored to normal whiteness by putting in kettle of cold water, adding white soap shavings and lemon juice, and letting come slowly to a boil. Rinse in tepid water, then blue water, and hang in the sun.

TO TAKE OUT STAINS

NONE SO STUBBORN THAT THEY CAN'T BE REMOVED.

Grain Alcohol One of the Best Remedies to Employ, or in Some Cases Javelle Water Will Do the Work Better.

Alcohol will usually remove the stains made by grass and fruit juice, although it will not discourage in the least the stains of some kinds of fruit. Only grain alcohol should be used. It acts better if used warm, and can be heated by holding the bottle containing it in hot water. If patches of the stain remain pour boiling water on them. If they still persist, dilute muriatic acid, in a one per cent solution, can be applied. Care should be taken to rinse the fabric thoroughly afterward in several waters, with a very little ammonia in the last one, to counteract the effect of the acid and prevent it from injuring the cloth. Javelle water, which can be made at home, is a trustworthy means for removing almost any fruit stain. It is especially good for peach and pear stains, which are usually the most obstinate of all spots. Soak the spots in it for three or four minutes, and then rinse in cold, clean water. Afterward launder the article as usual. Alcohol is usually a perfect solvent for the stain of green vegetable matter, whether or not the material be washable. Some housewives find ordinary kitchen molasses sufficient remedy for such stains upon any sort of fabric. It is rubbed thoroughly into the stain, allowed to stand ten minutes, and then washed out with warm water and soap. If the article cannot be washed, the molasses is left on, with the stain thickly covered, for two or three days. Then it is wiped and sponged off with clear water. If traces remain they will probably yield to a sponging with alcohol, or a mixture of equal parts of ether and alcohol with a dash of ammonia.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Use very little bluing in washing laces, for the lace absorbs a great deal of blue.

To smooth an iron, plunge it while hot into cold water with a little soap in it.

A roast of veal will be greatly improved if larded; this prevents it being dry and tasteless when cooked.

Never try to clean yokes, collars or cuffs while sewed on the gown. Such things should always be made detachable.

To remove the leather stains from light colored stockings, put a couple of tablespoonfuls of borax in the water in which they are washed.

To clean ribbons, sponge with alcohol and over the spot with some clean, clean, white soap. During the process the ribbon must be kept straight. When clean rinse in alcohol and place between two towels. Press out with a hot iron.

In the directions for washing white silk sugar is recommended also. The silk should be washed in warm, not hot, water, with pure castile soap, then rinsed thoroughly in water to which has been added a teaspoonful of granulated sugar. The silk garment should be washed by itself.

Birthday Cake.

One cup of flour sifted seven times, three heaping tablespoonfuls of cornstarch, sift four times, one cup of sugar, sift four times. Cream scant half cup butter, with sugar and cornstarch. Beat in one at a time whites of six eggs, one-fourth cup of milk, one-half teaspoon almond flavor, flour to thicken, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Beat until it looks like a mass of whipped cream. Put in a pan lined with buttered paper and bake 45 minutes in a moderate oven. This recipe is original. It is the way I made my little girl's birthday cake. It was delicious and fine grained. When it was cool I put on a nice coating of chocolate frosting. After that gets hard put on a thick coat of white and cover it thickly with cocoanut. Put in two little candles, one pink, one white.

Creamy Rice Pudding Without Eggs.

One quart of milk, one-half cup of rice, eight level tablespoonfuls of sugar, two level tablespoonfuls of butter, one teaspoonful of vanilla and a little nutmeg or cinnamon. Bake in a moderate oven for one and one-half or two hours. For the first hour stir every 15 minutes to stir down the top as it forms, letting it brown for the last hour without stirring, when it will be found nice and creamy and is delicious either hot or cold. A moderate oven is essential to success, however, for if pudding cooks too rapidly and milk boils away it will dry, but if perfectly cooked the rice grains will not be mashed, but will be much swollen and milk creamy.

Potatoes en Surprise.

Wash some potatoes, and bake in their skins till soft. Cut each in half lengthways, and scoop out the meaty part, taking care not to break the skin. Pass the potato through a sieve and season with salt and pepper, and add a good piece of butter. Boil some spinach, pass it through a sieve, and carefully line each half-potato with the puree. Put a poached egg into the cavity, cover with the potato puree, and mark with a fork. Put little bits of butter on the top of the potatoes, and set in a brisk oven till of a golden color.

A. L. GEISENHEIMER

FAYE LEANORE GEHANT

No flower, how're small, blooms for itself alone. This little flower, Faye Leanoire Gehant, was born to the home of Lulu and Arthur Gehant March 7, 1904; died Jan. 20, 1913, in Ashton, aged 8 years, 10 months and 13 days.

She was baptised into this church, at Ashton, July, 17, 1904, by Rev. J. R. Hamilton. At the time of her death she was a church member and a member of Mrs. Rosecrans' Sunday school class.

While living in Dixon she entered and finished the kindergarten work, also nearly completed the second grade work. She was a special favorite of her teacher.

Her life was an illustration of the great truth that those who bring sunshine to the life of others, can't keep it from themselves. She was all sunshine, even when the shadows were gathering around her.

Though her life seems only a short span, yet sunshine was all about her. She was always cheerful and thus cheered others. Her little life was so intermingled with music and mirth, that a smile played over her features as she stepped from this earth life in the Mansion already occupied by her sainted mother. Of such a life we may well say, 'You make break, you may shatter the vase, if you will, but the scent of the rose will cling round it still.' Just so with this little crushed flower, her influence will go on and on.

Her perfect faith in her Saviour is one of the many lessons we can imitate. Daily it was her custom to carry all her joys and all her little cares to a great God in prayer. What can be more beautiful or more inspiring than this.

Her record for truthfulness is without a stain. Many of the great truths of God's holy book were familiar to her.

Her little hands and her sweet voice had already learned the music of Heaven and we feel sure she is chanting those great melodies so familiar to the inhabitants of the City Four Square.

How can it be otherwise when the Master said 'Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not; for of such is the kingdom of heaven.' If anyone was ever well equipped for entrance into Life Eternal, it seems to me little Leanoire was. Although her place in the family will remain vacant, although her little songs will remain unsung—all though her little tasks will never be done here, yet her life will be the rose, go on shedding sunshine and hope all along our earth paths. We shall miss her in our church, especially in her Sunday school class. No tongue can tell how she will be missed by all her home folks, but the bright future for which she was so well prepared, draws us thitherward, and causes us to dry our tears and get ready to meet her where sorrow, pain and death can never come.

LAKE GENEVA, SWITZERLAND

It is Lovable in Calm and in Storm, at Sunset, in the Twilight That Succeeds.

Berne.—Although the summer attractions of Switzerland are voted old-fashioned by those newly informed with the more modish taste for its winter sports, there are still a few of us who prefer its July to its January. The neiges d'antan have receded to the mountain tops, and the summer tourist is hardly content to leave them there, realizing that in the sweet of the year the lake shores are at their best. Of all the lakes that which washes the quays of Geneva, Lausanne, Evian and Montreux, and the shores of two countries, is perhaps the most hackneyed, yet to myself—maybe from old associations; coetus dulces, valet!—it is the most lovable. There is varied lure in the curious variety of its scenery, half French and half Italian, geographically as well as politically in its primitive fishing and ancient sailing boats.

Its colors may be less chameleon in their changes than those of Tahoe, its trout less accessible to the angler than those of Lake Louise, its traditions less solemn than those of Galilee, yet it is an inland sea that the traveler may learn to love for its own sake, even though it may not move him, like Rousseau, to drop his tears in it. Byron made verse on its shores, and here, too, Gibson finished his greatest work; yet such associations count for little in the sum of its magic. It is lovable in calm and in storm, at sunset, or in the twilight that succeeds. The long reflections of cumulous clouds seen of an afternoon from the hotel balcony at Evian are unforgettable.

The fisheries of Lake Geneva are unsatisfactory from the standpoint of sport. Of angling, properly speaking, there is none, save for small perch and roach, which are caught on long bamboo rods and coarse float tackle, with a worm.—The Field, London.

FARM BOY IS DETERIORATING

Labor-Saving Machinery Given as One Cause by Dr. L. J. Cooke of Minnesota University.

Minneapolis, Minn.—The universal use of modern farm machinery, relieving the farm boy of much of the heavy work formerly done by hand, is to blame for his reported physical inferiority to his city-bred classmate, says Dr. L. J. Cooke, physical director at the University of Minnesota. Dr. Cooke recently declared that the average city boy physically was much superior to the country-bred lad. Here are some of the reasons to which Dr. Cooke ascribes the country boy's inferiority:

Use of labor-saving machinery on the farm.

Financial ability of farmers to hire laborers to perform the heavy work, relieving their sons of the task.

Riding on farm machinery, plowing, mowing and performing other farm duties, causing the boy to become stoop shouldered.

Lack of systematic physical culture.

Absence of athletic rivalry among young men on the farms.

YOUNG BANDITS IN JAIL

Youthful Desperadoes at Washington Must Stay in Training School During Minority.

Washington.—Stripped of their black masks and revolvers, three youthful desperadoes were taken to the national training school, where they probably will remain for the next seven years. The boys were Raymond Whitmore, Raymond Brinkley and Harry Hodgkinson, all fourteen years old. Judge Delacy in the juvenile court sentenced them during their minority.

The three lads, inflamed by "penny-dreadful" literature, covered their faces with black masks, and, revolvers in hand, broke into a store, afterward "jimmying" their way into a private residence.

CHAPTER XXIX.

The Chase.

Hamlin never forgot those two days and nights of waiting, while the storm roared without and the clouds of drifting snow made any dream of advance impossible. Trained as he was to patience, the delay left marks in his face, and his nerves throbbled with pain. His mind was with her constantly, even in moments of uneasy sleep, picturing her condition unsheltered from the storm and protected only by Le Fevre and his two Indian allies. If he could only reach them, only strike a blow for her release, it would be such a relief. The uncertainty weighed upon him, giving unrestricted play to the imagination, and, incidentally awakening a love for the girl so overwhelming, as almost to frighten him. He had fought this feeling heretofore, deliberately, satisfied that such ambition was hopeless. He would not attempt to lower her to his level, nor give her the unhappiness of knowing that he dared misconstrue her frank friendliness into aught more tender. But these misfortunes had changed the entire outlook. Now he flung all pretense aside, eager to place his life on the altar to save her. Even a dim flame of hope began blazing in his heart—hope that he might yet wring from Le Fevre a confession that would clear his name. He knew his man at last—knew him, and would track him now with all the pitiless ingenuity of a savage. Once he could stand erect, abashed of disgrace, a man again among men, he would ignore the uniform of the ranks, and go to her with all the pride of his race. Ay! and down in his heart he knew that she would welcome his coming; that her eyes would not look at the uniform, but down into the depths of his own.

He thought of it all as he paced the floor, or stared into the fire, while outside the wind raged and howled, piling the snow against the cabin front, and whirling in mad bursts up the valley. It would be death to face the fury of it on those open plains. There was nothing left him but to swear, and pace back and forth. Twice he and Hughes fought their way to the corral, found the horses sheltered in a little cove, and brought them food and water. The struggle to accomplish this was sufficient proof of the impossibility of going farther. Exhausted and breathless they staggered back into the quietness of the cabin, feeling as though they had been beaten by clubs. Once, desperate to attempt something, Hamlin suggested searching for the bodies of Wasson and Wade, but Hughes shook his head, staring at the other as though half believing him demented. The Sergeant strode to the door and looked out into the smother of snow; then came back without a word of protest.

Carroll improved steadily, complaining of pain where the frost had nipped exposed flesh, yet able to sit up, and eat heartily. There remained a numbness in his feet and legs, however, which prevented his standing alone, and both the others realized that he would have to be left behind when the storm abated. Hughes would go without doubt; on this point the Sergeant was determined. He did not altogether like or trust the man; he could not blot from memory the cowardly shot which killed Wasson, nor entirely rid himself of a fear that he, himself, had failed an old comrade, in not revenging his death; yet one thing was clear—the man's hatred for Le Fevre made him valuable. Trenchant as he might be by nature, now his whole soul was bent on revenge. Moreover he knew the lay of the land, the trail the fugitives would follow, and to some extent Black Kettle's camp. Little by little Hamlin drew from him every detail of Le Fevre's life in the cattle country, becoming more and more convinced that both men were thieves, their herds largely stolen through connivance with Indians. Undoubtedly Le Fevre was the bigger rascal of the two, and possessed greater influence because of his marriage into the tribe.

It was the second midnight when the wind died down. Hamlin, sleeping fitfully, seemed to sense the change; he rose, forced the door open, and peered out eagerly. There was lightness to the sky, and all about, the unbroken expanse of snow sparkled in cold crystals. Nothing broke the white desolation but the dark waters of the river still unfrozen, and the gaunt limbs of the cottonwoods, now standing naked and motionless. The silence was profound, seeming almost painful after the wild fury of the past days. He could hear the soft purr of the water, and Carroll's heavy breathing. And it was cold, bitterly cold, the chill of it penetrating to his very bones. But for that he had no care—his mind had absorbed the one important fact; the way was open, they could go. He shook Hughes roughly into wakefulness, giving utterance to sharp, tense orders, as though he dealt with a man of his own troop.

"Turn out, lively, now. Yes, the storm is over. It's midnight, or a little after, and growing cold. Put on your heavy stuff, and bring up the two best horses. Come, now; you'll step off quicker than that, Hughes, if you ride with me. I'll have everything ready by the time you get here. Eat! Hell! We'll eat in the saddle! What's that, Carroll?"

Plunged Profanely Into the Drift.

"Ye ain't a-goin' to leave me yere alone, are ye, Sergeant?"

"No; there'll be two horses to keep you company. You've got a snap, man; plenty to eat, and a good fire—what more do you want—a nurse? Hughes, what, in the name of Heaven, are you standing there for? Perhaps you would like to have me stir you up. I will if those horses are not here in ten minutes."

The cowman, muffled to the ears in a buffalo coat, plunged profanely into the drift, slamming the door behind him. Hamlin hastily glanced over the few articles piled in readiness on the bench—ammunition, blankets, food—paying no heed to Carroll's muttering of discontent. By the time Hughes returned, he had everything strapped for the saddles. He thrust the cowman's rifle under his own flap, but handed the latter a revolver, staring straight into his eyes as he did so.

"I reckon you and I have got enough in common in this chase to play square," he said grimly. "We're both out after Le Fevre, ain't we?"

"Y—bet."

"All right, then; here's your gun. If you try any trickery, Hughes, I'd advise that you get me the first shot, for if you miss you'll never have another."

The man drew the sleeve of his coat over his lips, his eyes shifting before the Sergeant's steady gaze.

"I ain't that sort," he muttered uneasily. "Yer don't need to think that o' me."

"Maybe not," and Hamlin swung into the saddle carelessly. "Only I thought I'd tell you beforehand what would happen if you attempt any fool gun play. Take the lead, you know the trail."

Carroll, supporting himself by the table, crept across to the door and watched them, reckless as to the entering cold. The glare of the white snow revealed clearly the outlines of the disappearing horsemen, as they rode cautiously down the bank. The thin fringe of shore ice broke under the weight of the ponies' hoofs, as the riders forced them forward into the icy water. A moment later the two crept up the steep incline of the opposite shore, appearing distinct against the sky as they attained the summit. Hamlin waved his hand, and then, on a hope, the figures vanished into the gloom. Crying, and swearing at his helplessness, the deserted soldier closed the door, and crept back shivering into his blankets.

Hughes turned his horse's head to the southwest, and rode steadily forward, the buffalo overcoat giving him a shaggy, grotesque appearance in the spectral light reflected from the snow. Without a word Hamlin followed a pace behind. Their route lay for the first few miles across a comparatively level plateau, over which the fierce wind of the late storm had swept with such violence as to leave the surface packed firm. The night shut them in silently, giving to their immediate surroundings a mournful loneliness most depressing. There were no shadows, only the dull snow-gleam across which they passed like spectres, the only sound the crunching of their horses' hoofs on the crust. The Sergeant, staring about, felt that he had never looked upon a more depressing spectacle than this gloomy landscape, desolate and wind-swept, still overcast with low-lying storm clouds, black and ominous.

They advanced thus for two hours, making no attempt to force their animals, and scarcely exchanging a word, both men watchful of the snow underfoot in search of a possible trail, when the character of the country began to change. The level plain broke into a series of ridges of irregular formation, all evidently heading toward some more southern valley. In the depressions the snow lay banked in deep rifts, and, after plunging desperately through two of these, unable to judge correctly in the dim light where to ride, Hughes turned more to the south, skirting along the bare slope of a ridge, trusting some turn lower down would yield them the necessary westerning.

"It's over the ponies' heads down there, Sergeant," he said, pointing sideways into the dark hollow, "an' we're bound to strike a cross-ridge afore we come to the bluffs."

"What bluffs? The Canadian?"

"Yep; it's badly broken kentry a long ways west o' yere. Bad lands mostly, an' a hell o' a place for cattle to hide out."

"Hughes, do you know where Black Kettle's camp is?"

"Well, no, not exactly. Las' winter the Cheyennes was settled 'bout opposite the mouth o' Buffalo creek, an' thar 're down thar somewhere now. Thar's one thing sure—they ain't any east o' thet. As we ain't hit no trail, I reckon as how Le Fevre's outfit must hev drifted further then I calculated."

"I thought so at the time," commented the other, quietly. "However, we will have to make the circle, and, if the country out yonder is as you describe, they will be no better off. They'll have to follow the ridges to get through. We may get a glimpse when daylight comes."

They rode on steadily, keeping down below the crest of the hills, yet picking a passage where the snow had been swept clear. The slipperiness of the incline made their progress slow, as they dared not risk the breaking of a horse's leg in that wilderness, and the faint glimmer was most confusing. The wind had ceased, the calm was impressive after the wild tumult, but the cold seemed to strengthen as the dawn advanced, viciously biting the exposed faces of the men. The straining ponies were white with frost. In the gray of a cheerless dawn they reached the first line of bluffs, and drew rein just below the summit, where they could look off across the lower ridges to the westward.

It was a wild, desolate scene, the dull gray sky overhead, the black and white shading below. Mile on mile the picture unrolled to the horizon, the vista widening slowly as the light increased, bringing forth the details of barren, wind-swept ridges and shallow valleys choked with snow. Not a tree, not a shrub, not even a rock broke the dead monotony. All was loneliness and silence. The snow lay gleaming and untrampled, except as here and there a dull brown patch of dead grass darkened the side of a hill. Hamlin shadowed his eyes with gloved hands, studying intently inch by inch the wide domain. Suddenly he arose in his stirrups, bending eagerly forward.

"By heaven! There they are, Hughes," he exclaimed, feeling the hot blood course through his veins. "See, on the incline of that third ridge. There is a shadow there, and they are not moving. Here; draw in back of me; now you can see. It looks as though they had a horse down."

Hughes stared long in the direction indicated, his eyes narrowed into mere slits.

"Ah! that's it," he said at last. "Horse broke a leg; shot it jest then—I seen the flash. Now they're goin' on. See! One fellow climbin' up behind 'nother, an' the horse left lyin' thar on the snow."

"How many people do you make out?" and Hamlin's voice shook a little. "There's four, ain't there?"

At that distance the fugitives looked like mere black dots. It could scarcely be determined that they moved, and yet their outlines were distinct against the background of white snow, while the two watchers possessed the trained vision of the plains. Hughes answered after a deliberate inspection, without so much as turning his head.

"Thar's four; leastwise thar was four horses, and two—the Indians likely—are ridin' double. Thar animals are 'bout plumb, it looks ter me—just able ter crawl. Ain't had no fodder 'bout the size o' it. We ought to be able ter head thar bunch off 'fore they git to the Canadian at the rate o' travel—hey, Sergeant?"

Hamlin's eyes followed the long sweep of the cross-ridge, studying its trend, and the direction of the intervening valleys. Once down on the other slope all this extensive view would be hidden; they would have to ride blindly, guessing at the particular swale along which those others were advancing. To come to the summit again would surely expose them to those keen Indian eyes. They would be searching the trail ahead ceaselessly, noting every object along the crests of the ridges. However, if the passage around was not blocked with snow, they ought to attain the junction in ample time. With twice as far to travel, their ponies were strong and fit and should win out against Le Fevre's starved beasts. He waved his gloved hand.

"We'll try it," he said, shortly; "come on, Hughes."

He led off along the steep side of the hill, and forcing his horse into a sharp trot, headed straight out into the white wilderness; Hughes, without uttering a word, brought down his quirt on his pony's flank and followed.

HELEN TAFT TO RESCUE

President's Daughter Risks Life to Save Friend.

Races Her Mount After Runaway Horse of Her Guest, Miss Bowers—Latter Thrown and Hurt.

Washington, Jan. 29.—Miss Helen Taft was the heroine of a thrilling runaway here when she risked her life by racing her mount through the streets of Washington in an effort to save Miss Martha Bowers from being dashed to death by the saddle horse she had been riding as a member of Miss Taft's party.

As it was Miss Bowers was thrown when her mount, the property of Miss Taft, became unmanageable and dashed wildly down Sixteenth street, crashing into a street car at U street northwest.

Miss Bowers is the daughter of the late Lloyd N. Bowers of Chicago, formerly solicitor general of the United States.

She escaped death only by the greatest good fortune. Her right arm was fractured above the wrist, her head badly cut, and she sustained numerous bruises but retained consciousness. The horse was instantly killed.

Miss Taft accompanied Miss Bowers to the Garfield hospital where she ascertained that her young friend's injuries were not fatal.

EVER POPULAR APPLE PIE

Much Care Required to Make a Perfect Production of This Dessert So Much in Demand.

Apple pie is one of the most popular of desserts. One of the greatest errors of which the amateur pie maker is apt to be guilty is that of using too plain a crust. More than any other does the apple pie demand the tenderest, flakiest crust that it is possible to fabricate.

Use tart apples, put the pie in a very hot oven, on the lower shelf, and, as it cooks on the bottom, lift it to the top shelf to brown.

Some of the flavorings and variations that have been tried are the use of grated nutmeg or cinnamon and of the grated rind of a lemon and three whole cloves to the filling; the grating of cheese over the crust; the addition of one or two spoonfuls of other fruit, such as preserved grapes, cooked cranberries, dates, raisins or quince jelly.

A man told of a wonderful apple pie which had thin bacon, dried very crisp and brown, spread over the fruit before the top crust went on. He said it tasted surprisingly good.

The following is a unique form of apple pie, which tastes and looks much like a pumpkin pie: Grate some rather sweet apples, and for every three apples use a cupful of sugar, two eggs, a teaspoonful of powdered ginger, a scant teaspoonful of mace, also powdered, and half a teaspoonful of grated nutmeg. Beat the grated apples with the sugar and spices, then stir in the eggs. Bake with an under crust only.

Pressed Corn Beef—Cold.

Soak over night if very salt, but if beef is young and properly corned, this is not necessary. Pour over it cold water enough to cover it well, after washing off the salt. The rule for boiling meats is 25 minutes to a pound, but corned beef should be placed on a part of the stove or range where it will simmer, not boil, uninterruptedly from four to six hours, according to size of the piece; remove from liquor, then place in a tin; put sufficient weight on top to press the parts closely together; set where it will become cold. This gives a firm, solid piece to cut into slices, garnish with sprigs of parsley or celery and serve with fancy pickles or French mustard. A brisket or plate piece is the best, removing bones when done.

25 CENT "DANDERINE" FOR FALLING HAIR ITCHY SCALP OR DANDRUFF--GROWS HAIR

Don't Pay 50 Cents for Worthless Hair Tonics—Use Old, Reliable "Danderine"—Get Results.

Thin, brittle, colorless an draggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf. There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast.

I Cure To Say Cured

Varicocele, Stricture, Contagious

Blood Poison, Nervo-Sexual

Debility and all Reflex

Complications and

Associate Diseases

DR. GUTHRIE.

The Successful Specialist, who has cured so many in Illinois, will be in his office, Corner 1st Ave. and Third St., Saturday, Saturday, Feb. 1, from 10 a. m. to 8 p. m.

Whatever may be the cause of Varicocele, its injurious effects are well known. It debilitates the mind, weakens the body, racks the nervous system, and ultimately leads to complete loss of sexual power. If you are a victim of varicocele come to my office and let me explain to you my process of treating it. You will then not wonder why I have positively cured more than 12,000 cases of this dire disease during the past twenty years. Under my treatment the patient improves from the very beginning. All pain instantly ceases. Soreness and swelling quickly subside. The pools of stagnant blood are forced from the dilated veins, which rapidly assume their normal size, strength and soundness. All indications of disease and weakness vanish completely, and in their stead come the pride, the power and the pleasures of perfect health and restored manhood.

STRICTURE

It matters not how long you have suffered from Stricture, or how many different doctors I will not do it by cutting or dilating. My treatment is new, entirely original with me, and perfectly painless. It stops every unnatural discharge, allays all inflammation, reduces the prostate gland when enlarged, cures and heals the bladder and kidneys when irritated or congested, invigorates the sexual organ and restores health and soundness to every part of the body affected by the disease.

NERVO-SEXUAL DEBILITY

Men, many of you are now reaping the result of your former folly. Your manhood is failing and will soon be lost unless you do something for yourself. There is no time to lose. Impotency, like all sexual diseases, is never on the standstill. With it you can make no compromise. Either you must master it or it will master you and fill your whole future with misery and indescribable woe. I have treated so many cases of this kind that I am as familiar with them as you are with the very daylight. Once cured by me, you will never again be bothered with emissions, drains, prematureness, small or weak organs, nervousness, failing memory, loss of ambition or similar symptoms which rob you of your manhood and absolutely unfit you for study, business, pleasure or marriage. My treatment for men will correct all these evils and restore you to what nature intended—a hale, healthy, happy man, with physical, mental and sexual powers complete.

ASSOCIATE DISEASES

In curing a disease of any kind I never fail to remove reflex complication. If the case is Varicocele, the weakness caused by it disappears. If it is Stricture, and has developed into Prostatic, Bladder or Kidney affection, the injured organs are all restored to a perfectly healthy condition. If it is Contagious Blood Poison, any and all Skin, Blood and Bone diseases arising from the taint are entirely and permanently eliminated from the system. If it is impotency, the many distressing symptoms following in its train and indicating a premature decline of physical, mental and sexual powers are totally removed and rapidly replaced by the powerful energy of robust manhood. Hence all resulting ills and reflex complications which may be properly termed associate diseases, and which in fact are often more serious than the original ailment that gives rise to them—all, I say, disappear completely and forever with the cure of the main malady.

Dr. Guthrie will be at the Nachusa House Dixon, on Friday Jan. 31st from 11:30 a. m. to 8 p. m. and return every 4 week

Boiled Canvas-Back Duck.
Take one pair of ducks cleaned nicely, wipe well and split down the back. Season with salt and pepper and brush well with olive oil, fresh and sweet. Place in the broiler. Turn at least twice so the meat will cook thoroughly without burning. Let it cook seven or ten minutes on either side.
Have a heated platter ready on which to place the duck and pour over it a drawn butter sauce mixed with the juice of a lemon and teaspoonful of parsley. Garnish with cress or curled celery.

French Coffee Cake.
Two tablespoonfuls of butter, two-thirds of a cupful of sugar, two-thirds of a cupful of milk and the yolk of one egg. Beat these ingredients well together, then add one and two-thirds cupfuls of flour, with which has been sifted one teaspoonful of baking powder, and lastly stir in the beaten white of one egg. Bake in square tin. When done sprinkle over the top one tablespoonful of granulated sugar mixed with one teaspoonful of cinnamon.

Coffee Cake.
One cupful of butter, one cupful of molasses, one cupful of sugar (light brown), one cupful of cold coffee, one egg, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one of cloves, one of nutmeg, one of soda, one pound of raisins, one-half pound of currants, one-quarter pound of citron, four cupfuls of flour will be needed for this recipe. Bake in moderate oven.

Mexican Farm Dish.
Cut up small a quarter pound of dried beef or boiled ham and put over the fire with a cup of stewed tomatoes and a quarter cup of dry rice, a sliced onion, pepper, and salt. Cook slowly until the rice is soft and serve hot.

GIVE PROPER FLAVOR

GREEN PEPPERS SHOULD BE MORE USED IN COOKING.

Of Great Value as a Digestive Element and Appetizer—At Least One Dish or Menu May Well Be So Flavored.

Those who enjoy piquantly flavored cooking in contrast to tamer dishes rejoice in the abundance at present of green peppers, large, firm, pungent in quality and extremely low in price, selling for 20 cents a dozen in some of the markets.

There are times of the year when peppers are so scarce as to be a decided luxury. Thus the sweet green peppers which come from the south in January bring from ten to fifteen cents apiece. This species of the pepper is extremely delicate and desirable mild and fine of fibre.

There are a great many kinds of this excellent vegetable, which for many years was rather neglected by American cooks except for pickling purposes. The pepper came originally from India, but is now grown freely here and exported to other countries.
As a digestive element and an appetizer it is of great value.

One of the finer varieties is the bell pepper, mild and sweet almost as the sweet Spanish kind. The bird pepper is hot and good, and when ripe, is introduced to advantage in white fish sauces, creamed chicken or other white fricassees, to which it gives pleasing color.

The American cayenne pepper is cultivated in New England and there

FOR THE EXTRA BEDSPREAD

Pretty and Useful Article May Be Made at Home by Woman Handy With the Needle.

These are days when many women appreciate the beauty of antique furniture, and collectors take great pleasure in furnishing their rooms with every detail in perfect harmony.

In the colonial bedroom, with its four-poster and mahogany highboy, the bedspread and window draperies are important factors. The guest chamber in olden times was supplied with an extra bedspread, which was drawn over the white counterpane.

To make one of these, purchase lace insertion either five or six inches wide and cut in strips the length desired. Join these alternately to strips of silk or satin the same width, corresponding in color with the draperies of the room. Ecru lace and Du Barry rose satin are an effective combination. Lace edging to match the insertion is used to border the spread.

If expense is to be considered, lace of cheaper quality and strips of flowered lawn or dimity make a charming bedspread. The window draperies are then fashioned of the flowered material.

Coffee Cake.

Beat one cup brown sugar and one and a half cups butter to a cream, then stir in one cup molasses. Add two teaspoons baking powder, a good pinch of nutmeg and cinnamon to four cups of flour and sift well. Beat one egg well, put in teaspoon and fill up the cup with cold coffee; add this and the flour to the molasses mixture. Melt one-half cup butter, and three tablespoons sugar, three tablespoons chopped walnuts and a pinch of cinnamon. Pour the cake into shallow pan, pour over the nuts, spreading evenly, and bake in moderate oven 25 minutes.
